

The Intelligencer.

Office: Nos. 35 and 37 Fourteenth Street.

FREW &amp; CAMPBELL,

PUBLISHERS AND PROPRIETORS.

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 18, 1878.

Lewis TILMAN had 10 retire from the greenback candidacy for governor in Tennessee, because he is unfortunate enough to have a record, and when in Congress a few years ago voted every time in direct antagonism to the principles he now advocates.

The Wheeling and Tuscarawas Valley Railroad.

Considerable impatience is manifested in regard to the slow progress of this road. The excuse is the unexpected obstacles at the Flushing tunnel, which have proven more formidable than at first anticipated. These obstacles will delay its completion for six months yet, perhaps until the 1st of July, by which time, it is said, the whole line can be made ready for the ties and iron. In the meantime it is the part of wisdom to refrain from work on the line, inasmuch as the damages by rain and floods during the winter and spring will be saved. The company estimate that their final expenses could be increased to the extent of $100,000 by finishing up the line so far ahead of the Flushing tunnel. They expect to save not only interest but a great deal of principal by delaying the completion of the road until next season.

In view of these facts it is safe to say that at least a year will elapse before the cars will come through from Cleveland to Bridgeport.

The Trouble in South Carolina Briefly Stated.

The political situation in South Carolina may be described briefly as follows: The Democratic State Convention this year reaffirmed the state platform of 1875 which disavowed "all disturbance of the peace of the state," and declared in favor of "a fair and peaceable election, appealing to the reason and not the passion of the people" and inviting citizens of all races and past political preferences to join in an effort to secure good and economical government. On this platform Governor Hampton and all the other Democratic state officers were renominated. The Republicans decided not to nominate a state ticket, but they are trying to elect candidates for Congress and for the Legislature in several districts. It happens that some of their candidates, whose influence with the colored people is still very potent, have been pronounced by a legislative investigating committee to be guilty of various crimes against the state. The Democrats are determined not only that these men shall not be elected, but that the Republicans shall secure as few offices as possible either in Congress, in the State Legislature or in the counties and towns. To accomplish this the Charleston News, the leading Democratic journal of the State, admits that a certain kind of bull-dozing is practised. Democrats, wearing red shirts as uniforms, attended all Republican meetings in large bodies, and insist that the meetings shall be addressed by Democrats as well as by Republicans. In the case of S. A. Swails, a colored ex-State Senator who is again a candidate for the office, the Charleston News admits that "a number of citizens declared very positively that Swails must leave the county, and that they would hold him to account if the incendiary menaces of his supporters bore any fruit." The News defends this course on the ground that Swails was accused of bribing the Legislature Committee on Frauds, and was allowed to resign his office as State Senator without prosecution on condition that he would not again seek a public position; it says, however, that he has both broken his bargain and has used his influence to stir up a race feeling.

The Springfield Republican has been the leading organ of Wade Hampton in the North, and is still reluctant to admit that he is derelict in his duty as Governor of South Carolina. Nevertheless, it is moved to make the following comments on these "red shirted" demonstrations:

"Scarcely anything in recent politics is more revolting than the keen and hardly disguised enjoyment with which the old blood-shed organs welcome the news of outrages upon Republicans in South Carolina. Nothing has happened since the Charleston massacre that has begun to please the Bill Chandler stripe of Republicans half so well, as nothing has happened more discouraging to all well-wishers alike of the South and the common country."

"Making due allowance for the obvious partisan exaggeration, it seems plain that the South Carolina Democrats have at last broken away from the control of Wade Hampton and the moderate wing of the party has led—certainly that the Governor has failed to realize the expectations of at least trying to secure fair play in the campaign which his mainly rebuke of Gary and the bourgeois a month ago aroused. Attacks continue to be made upon Republican meetings, a little newspaper edited by one of Hampton's friends publishes an article to fire the Democratic heart, and a prominent Republican leader, ex-State Senator Swails, has been driven from the State, a committee notifying him that he would forfeit his life if he stayed. The Governor has promised to help the Republicans so far as they can under the United States laws, and there is some talk about the possibility of martial law being proclaimed, though this is absurd to be expected. Experience has shown that neither the Governor nor the non-federal troops can prevent outrages by Democratic hordes in the South. The men who can prevent them are the Hamptonites, and it is the blunder of the South Carolina Governor's life that he does not insist upon fair play."

REAL ESTATE LOOKING UP.—From various sections there come reports of a rise in the price of real estate. The Chicago Tribune says in a locality in that city where land sold two months ago for $50 a foot, $175 a foot has just been paid, and reports an increasing inquiry for real estate as a means of investment. The California Advertiser also has news of a decidedly increased inquiry for real estate in San Francisco, chiefly with a view to city improvements. In New England the Mirror of Manchester, New Hampshire, notes a lively demand for farm property, and adds that more farms have changed hands in the Granite State during the past nine months than during any other hundred years. It has already been noted that there is a great scarcity of farms for rent in the Eastern Shore counties of Maryland, as well as an improvement in the real estate sales in the Valley of Virginia. There is also a perceptible advance in the prices obtained for land which is forced on the market, whilst those who can be holding their lands, satisfied that bottom figures have been touched, and that a brighter day is dawning.

A Decision that Concerns Washington County, Pa.

Some years ago Washington county, Pa., repudiated a part of her Hempfield Railroad indebtedness by deducting a rebate of 5 percent from her interest coupons at each payment. She did this in spite of law equity, and simply by the "right of might." She kept up the practice for several years, but finally abandoned it possibly for fear of trouble, or, maybe, because she was finally shamed out of it. Be the motive what it may, it is now certain, from a decision of the U. S. Supreme Court just rendered, that she can be made to pay back every cent that she "concocted in the hands of holders of her securities. That Court has just rendered a decision denying that the city of Charleston in South Carolina has the right to tax its own bonds after they have once been issued at a certain rate and paying a certain interest, provided no privilege of taxing them is expressed in the bond. The Court condenses the law and equity of the whole subject into a few lines, as follows:

"The truth is, States and cities, when they borrow money and contract to pay it with interest, are not acting as sovereigns. They come down to the level of ordinary individuals. Their contracts have the same meaning as that of similar contracts made between private persons. Hence, instead of there being in the undertaking of a State or city to pay a reservation of a sovereign right to withhold payment, by or otherwise, the contract should be regarded as an assurance that such a right shall not be exercised. A promise to pay, with a reserved right to deny or change the effect of the promise, is an absurdity."

Unfermented Wine for Church Use.

We observe that the Conference Daily, published at Parkersburg during the sitting of the Conference, called upon the churches represented in the Conference to discontinue the use of fermented wine on sacramental occasions. One reason urged in favor of the change is the alleged fact that many persons "dare not take fermented wine, even sacramentally." Even John B. Gough "is said to take only the bread at communion." The article in the Daily sets forth that "many of the most profound scholars consider the evidence overwhelming that unfermented wine, as well as fermented wine, was known and used in Bible times, and that the former was employed by the Saviour at the Last Supper."

It seems, according to the Daily, that "One of the great obstacles to the carrying out of this requirement is the difficulty in procuring such wine. This is especially true in country places. To meet such a need, Rev. W. C. Snodgrass, brought to the Conference, for gratuitous distribution, one thousand carls, containing a formula for making grape juice sweet for years. "This formula was kindly furnished by Mr. James Reed, a prominent druggist and Methodist of Wheeling, and has been tried with great satisfaction at Chapline street and other churches in Wheeling."

Fresh Outbreak of Yellow Fever at Galipolis.

GALLIPOLIS, O., October 16.—We had thought that yellow fever had entirely left our vicinity, and hoped to have no more cases to report; but within the last week we have had seven deaths, and now that they are dead our physicians have no hesitancy in reporting them as genuine cases. It has created no excitement or alarm here, but in order to counteract the mischievous rumors in circulation abroad, that are so ruinous to trade and business generally, we think it best to give the facts just as they are.

The names of those who are said to have died with it in the last seven days are as follows, and, with one exception, live below the city and are on the circumference of the old infected district: Mrs. Brothers, Mrs. John Kerns, Mr. Wm. Holcomb, Miss Caroline Davis, Mrs. Roberts, Miss Sarah Kearns and Mrs. Margaret Beard, a teacher at the College Academy. Mrs. Beard was sick about two weeks, and if her case was yellow fever must have run into that on the theory that in time of any epidemic all diseases partake more or less of the prevailing epidemic. She has not been in the institution this term. There are some other cases, mostly among children, probably seven cases in all, and all but one below or back of the city.

The public and citizens of our neighboring towns can rest assured that this is the sum and substance of all the fever existing in this county, all the flying rumors to the contrary notwithstanding. There is no desire to suppress the truth or equivocate in regard to it, and it may be well to add that there is some controversy among the physicians in regard to at least two of the above-mentioned, though they are generally admitted to have been fever cases.

Prosperity of East Liverpool—All on Account of Her Potteries.

Martin's Ferry News.

A brief visit to East Liverpool last week showed that the pottery business has not been overdone. The town numbers about 4,000 inhabitants, the population being about equal to that of Martin's Ferry. About twenty-five potteries are in operation, giving employment to a very large proportion of the citizens, indeed this is the only branch of manufacturing carried on in this place; all are busy, all seem to be prosperous, and new houses of a good substantial kind are going up all over town; no complaint of hard times; steady employment at fair wages to all who are willing to work makes the town a busy hive of industry. A visit to one of the largest potteries, owned and managed by one of the pioneers in the business, was as gratifying as it was suggestive. We recollect the yellow ware of East Liverpool of nearly a quarter of a century ago; in fact, still own an old piece or two. Then all were fired in a dining room was imported, but the enterprising manufacturer, Mr. Knowles, toiled on, experimenting with clay from here, there and elsewhere, singly and in combination, till to-day he is turning out ware fit to grace a king's table. The potteries of Liverpool are well worthy of study.

Pittsburgh Disgusted with Boat Racing and Race Hall.

Gazette of yesterday.

A correspondent is anxious to know why the papers don't make more fuss over the boat race between Eph. Morris and Fred. Plaisted, which takes place on the Hulton course to-morrow. The fact is that very little interest is taken in the race, and no one seems to care very much who wins or loses. Moreover, so general is the idea that the winner of the race has already been determined, that very little betting is being made on the race. Pittsburgh's experience in boat racing the present season has been about on a par with her base ball experience. The mercenary attitude of last year's Alleghenies toward the close of the season quickly changed Pittsburgh from the best base ball city in the country to one of the worst. The repeated defeat of Pittsburgh oarsmen this summer, especially our one time favorite, Eph. Morris, has caused a similar feeling of listlessness in regard to aquatic matters. It is not necessary to publish the record of either of the men for few persons would read it.
